

Enigmatic pyramids survive for millennia

Gods and goddesses for every aspect of life protect and provide for the people

Yearly flooding during Akhet keeps farmlands fertile and fruitful.

Pharaohs flaunt their wealth and power with precious treasure

The River Nile winds and glides through the scorching desert

Intricate hieroglyphics in towering temples reveal stories of gods and Pharaohs

Anubis guides the mummified dead to be judged in the duat

Noteworthy inventions of papyrus, shadufs, ploughs and nilometers

Sphinx silently guards the tombs of kings

Let's write an acrostic poem!

1. Start by choosing the topic of your poem and writing it down the side of your page.
2. Use your mind map to look for words to do with your topic. You might like to add to your mind map or circle words you think could work in your poem.
3. Start building the lines for your poem. Each line must have at least three words.

Challenge: Can you include some alliteration in your poem?

Let's write an acrostic poem!

1. Start by choosing the topic of your poem and writing it down the side of your page.
2. Use your mind map to look for words to do with your topic. You might like to add to your mind map or circle words you think could work in your poem.
3. Start building the lines for your poem. Each line must have at least three words.

Challenge: Can you include some alliteration in your poem?

Let's write an acrostic poem!

1. Start by choosing the topic of your poem and writing it down the side of your page.
2. Use your mind map to look for words to do with your topic. You might like to add to your mind map or circle words you think could work in your poem.
3. Start building the lines for your poem. Each line must have at least three words.

Challenge: Can you include some alliteration in your poem?

Let's write an acrostic poem!

1. Start by choosing the topic of your poem and writing it down the side of your page.
2. Use your mind map to look for words to do with your topic. You might like to add to your mind map or circle words you think could work in your poem.
3. Start building the lines for your poem. Each line must have at least three words.

Challenge: Can you include some alliteration in your poem?

Let's write an acrostic poem!

1. Start by choosing the topic of your poem and writing it down the side of your page.
2. Use your mind map to look for words to do with your topic. You might like to add to your mind map or circle words you think could work in your poem.
3. Start building the lines for your poem. Each line must be a full sentence and contain an interesting adjective.
4. Look for places where you can include alliteration in your poem. The easiest way to do this is to use an adjective which starts with the same sound as your noun!

Let's write an acrostic poem!

1. Start by choosing the topic of your poem and writing it down the side of your page.
2. Use your mind map to look for words to do with your topic. You might like to add to your mind map or circle words you think could work in your poem.
3. Start building the lines for your poem. Each line must be a full sentence and contain an interesting adjective.
4. Look for places where you can include alliteration in your poem. The easiest way to do this is to use an adjective which starts with the same sound as your noun!

Let's write an acrostic poem!

1. Start by choosing the topic of your poem and writing it down the side of your page.
2. Use your mind map to look for words to do with your topic. You might like to add to your mind map or circle words you think could work in your poem.
3. Start building the lines for your poem. Each line must be a full sentence and contain an interesting adjective.
4. Look for places where you can include alliteration in your poem. The easiest way to do this is to use an adjective which starts with the same sound as your noun!

Let's write an acrostic poem!

1. Start by choosing the topic of your poem and writing it down the side of your page.
2. Use your mind map to look for words to do with your topic. You might like to add to your mind map or circle words you think could work in your poem.
3. Start building the lines for your poem. Each line must be a full sentence and contain an interesting adjective.
4. Look for places where you can include alliteration in your poem. The easiest way to do this is to use an adjective which starts with the same sound as your noun!

Can you write an
acrostic poem
which...

creates the title
using the final
letters of
each line?

Fertile farms line the River Nile
Wondrous pyramids still standinG
Scorching deserts: hot and drY
Over 2,000 gods to worshiP
Mummified Pharaohs reach the duatT

Can you write an
acrostic poem
which...

creates the title
using one of the middle letters of
each line?

Head of A jackal
Holding an N ank
Guardian of tombs
God of emBalming
Guides souls to the duat
DecideS their fate

Can you write an
acrostic poem
which...

includes enjambment?
This is where the
sentences flow
over one or more lines.

Elaborate hieroglyphs of
Gold and stone
Yield stories and mysteries inside
Pramids which have stood for
Thousands of years

Can you write an
acrostic poem
which...

Includes alliteration on every line?

Naturally navigating northward
Idyllically intruding into the desert
Liberally lined with laboured farms
Essential to ease the efforts of travel